Confidentiality of Information

Southeastern Louisiana University ensures that the operations, activities, and business affairs of the University and our students are kept confidential to the greatest possible extent. If during the course of employment, employees acquire confidential information about the University, its employees, or students, such information is to be handled in strict confidence and not to be discussed with others. Employees are also responsible for the internal security of such information. Employees found to be violating this are subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination, and may be subject to civil and/or criminal penalties for violations. The Department Head, Dean, or Director may require employees to sign a Confidentiality Statement.
